

WHAT IS BEST FESTIVAL EVER?

An interactive performance that enhances teamwork and communication while building skills in understanding and managing complex systems.

Using hands-on boardgame mechanisms, participants plan and manage their own music festival. Working together, the audience take control all the way from programming the bands to producing the final concert.

Developed with research scientists from University College London, the Stockholm Resilience Centre and CSIRO, the show explores concepts from Systems Science and Resilience Thinking.

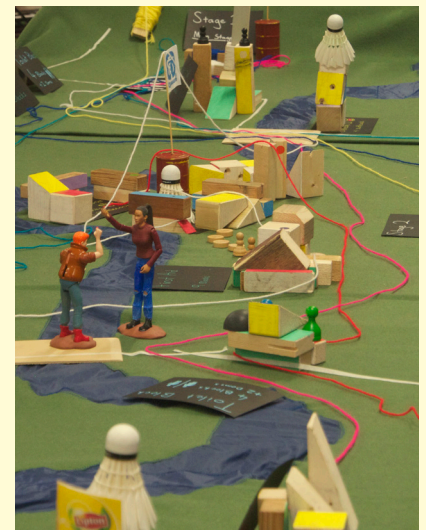

We have shared the work with urban planners, policy-makers, scientists, corporate teams, community leaders, students and festival audiences in the UK, Sweden and Australia.

“Systems science is abstract and can be difficult to communicate. Boho’s work builds well-crafted, entertaining metaphors, bringing these concepts to life for audiences from all walks of life. We sorely need this kind of experience.”

Dr Nicky Grigg, CSIRO

“The ideal mix of a learning experience and team-building - absolutely unique in its approach, and a brilliant alternative to standard corporate away day sessions.”

Julie Dodd, Zone Creative

BENEFITS

Fun teambuilding that helps participants explore the challenges and dynamics of managing complex systems.

GROUP SIZE

12 - 30

TIME

2 hours

REQUIREMENTS

Large meeting room with tables and chairs